

Brian McNaught

"... we residents of northern New Mexico need to be aware that according to accepted statistics, approximately 10% of our population is gay or lesbian."

"It is imperative that we continue with our efforts to enhance diversity and to foster an environment of mutual respect and fairness."

- John C. Browne

Special All Managers Meeting
(open to managers and team leaders)

November 5, 1998

8:10–10:00 am

Physics Auditorium

A Workshop: Understanding Gay
Issues in the Workplace
(open to all employees)

November 5, 1998

1:00–5:00 pm

MSL Auditorium

Limited to 60 participants (no cost). Please register by phone, 667-0059, or <http://eshtraining>.

- half-day introductory workshop
- explores the impact of anti-gay behaviors on productivity
- examines the means of eliminating unprofessional conduct at work
- gain the insights and information you need to help create a safe and productive work environment for all employees

Brian McNaught, a presenter, educator, author, and corporate consultant, is sponsored by the Los Alamos National Laboratory Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Diversity Working Group and the Diversity Office in collaboration with the Laboratory's CIC, NMT, and CST Division Leaders. This meeting and workshop are part of a diversity plan at Los Alamos to create awareness of gay issues in the workplace and the surrounding communities. McNaught has an incredible skill in helping people understand and respond to gay issues in a nonthreatening way.

Brian McNaught is the best selling author of three books and is the nation's leading corporate diversity consultant dealing with gay issues in the workplace. McNaught has addressed hundreds of professional and university audiences, including Harvard, MIT, Vanderbilt, Lucent Technologies, AT&T, and the Wall Street Journal. His three-part television series was broadcast locally over PBS within the past year. He also has produced and/or is featured in five critically acclaimed educational videos. For more information, see <http://www.brian-mcnaught.com/>.